

Brand Ambassador

What is a Brand ambassador?

A fashion ambassador also known as a brand ambassador, is a person that represents a brand and their morals.

What do they do?

Fashion ambassadors have the responsibility to promote clothing and attract publicity for the brand.

Example:

An ambassador must publicise the clothing brand by attending fashion shows, private events, meetings, parties and posting pictures on their social media for worldwide publicity.

The Average salary:

The average salary for a brand ambassador is $32.12 per hour in Australia, on average they can make $62,624 per year and can potentially go higher depending on your impact to the brand.

Needed qualifications.

To be a successful ambassador you would need to complete your

- Year 12 pass
- Certificate IV in marketing and communication
- diploma of marketing and communication
- or bachelor's degree majoring in Media and communication.

Where can i seek work placement?

Finding placement is as easy as ordering clothing online. This type of industry is simple and accessible from any website.

- Pickstar.com.au
- Seek.com.au
- Cyclonetheagency.com.au
- Creatoer.co

These websites listed above are commonly known to employers and are normally used for employment, work placement etc.

Current Top Brand Ambassadors:

- Gigi Hadid

- Rihanna

- George Clooney

ELECTRICIAN

Electrician is a good job because of the great pay you get, an average of $92,658.

You also get to work in different environments, and you can also do commercial and domestic.

There is also very high demand for Electricians.

There are a lot of career options available in this trade and you can easily work for yourself if you want to, or you can work for someone else.

TYPES OF ELECTRICIANS

There are different types of electricians which you can become which gives you a wide variety of choices.

Residential/Domestic Electricians.

Residential electricians work in homes, apartments and other residential properties.

Commercial Electricians.

Construction Electricians.

Emergency Electricians.

SALARY

The average salary for Electrician is $92,658 per year in the Melbourne Area. The average additional cash compensation for a Electrician in the Melbourne Area is $1,200, with a range from $1,000 - $8,200. Salaries estimates are based on 52 salaries submitted anonymously to Glassdoor by Electrician employees in the Melbourne Area.

InvoiceBerry

4 TYPES OF ELECTRICIANS

- 1. RESIDENTIAL
These electricians work in residences and regularly install, maintain and upgrade electrical equipment. They often also install outdoor landscape lighting.
- 2. COMMERCIAL
This type of electrician normally works in commercial buildings (offices, shopping malls, etc.), on construction sites, or on mechanical electrical systems.
- 3. JOURNEYMEN
This category of electricians normally works with lighting installations, mechanical connections, power supplies, security systems and communications for both commercial and residential properties.
- 4. MASTER
These highly skilled electricians are normally involved in the top responsibilities of supervising and even contracting for themselves.

WHY MECHANICAL PLUMBING IS A GOOD CAREER

A career in plumbing has great potential for advancement. If you have the determination and the skill, you can work your way up to the master level. Master plumbers earn an excellent salary and have the opportunity to work on a wide variety of large-scale, complex, and innovative projects.

CONTACT US

The Phone Company | (206) 555-0100 |
info@thephone-company.com
www.thephone-company.com

WHY PLUMBING IS A GOOD JOB!

MECHANICAL PLUMBING

Mechanical plumbing is a type of plumbing work that focuses on servicing the mechanical part of air-conditioning, heating, and other ventilating systems. This type of work can be provided to all buildings with machine facilities such as escalators, elevators and medical gas equipment.

BENEFITS OF MECHANICAL PLUMBING CAREER

Some advantages of plumbing maintenance that will make your life easier include Better Water Pressure, Healthier Family, Less Chance of Emergency Repair, Save Money on Utilities, Improve Value.

The average annual salary for mechanical plumber jobs in Melbourne ranges from $80,000 to $90,000. Plumbing contractors are one of the highest paid contractors. It's a skill you keep and use for life. Evolving technology makes it an exciting trade to work in. It's a sociable job where you get to interact with lots of people every day.

Employment of plumbers, pipefitters, and steamfitters is projected to grow 5 percent from 2020 to 2030, slower than the average for all occupations. Despite limited employment growth, about 51,000 openings for plumbers, pipefitters, and steamfitters are projected each year, on average, over the decade

“I would rather choose to be a plumber or a peddler in the hope to find that modest degree of independence still available under present circumstances.” – Albert Einstein

By Luke

My experience in the workplace - Ty

My experience in the work place has been short but great. At the start of last year, I had a football incident on round 4 in the first 15 seconds of the game. Sadly, I had a very bad knee injury with my ACL, MCL, meniscus, 3 fractures and a calf tear. This injury stopped me from working until this moment on, but before the injury I had 5 weeks of work in the plumbing industry and it was definitely the industry I want to be in.

Plumbing is a very good job and area I want to be in. Even though I haven't worked in it for that long I still think that it offers very good skills in construction, social and many more. This job provides good pay and many more benefits like hazard money, injury money and more.

Task 2: Writing for Practical Purposes – Riley

With my experience in the electrical industry, I had tried two different areas; the domestic side of electrical which is houses and electrical fitting which is creating large size power boards for factories and other things. My first day for domestic wasn't bad, it was just following the people around and seeing what they were doing. The only negative about day one was having to walk around inside the roof. The second day was various jobs but one included installing an aerial on the roof and it started to rain mid job which made it hard. For the third, fourth and fifth days I was helping them rewire an entire house. For a beginner, twisting wires and fitting them into power points, switches and light bases is not an easy task. You often fail a lot. But for the most part I was under the house. They told me that the space we had under there was actually a lot, while in reality it was at most 1-1 ½ feet space under there. It is very hard to breathe in those conditions considering you are on your stomach the whole time. There is also a lot of dust that gets into your lungs. I did this during winter, but I was sweating profusely. It was very hot under there. I couldn't imagine what it was like in summer. I checked my phone later due to using it for the torch and I was under there for about 10 hours in total. I cannot imagine what doing that would be like in an even smaller enclosed space or even in summer. It would be way too hard to do.

For my second experience in the electrical industry, I would go between two factories helping two groups of people. In the first factory I would help unbox the electrical powerboards and start to assemble them. This was very taxing on your feet as you were standing in one place for long periods of time. In the second factory I would mainly do small tasks that the others didn't want to so they delegated them to me such as cutting wires, measuring up steel and cutting it and other things. This also required you to stand in one place for extended periods of time which hurt my feet a lot. The factories had no cooling, there was only one tower fan in each factory which did not help much. By the end of the week I could barely stand. This was due to the large blisters that appeared on my feet that lasted for over a week.

I do not recommend this industry to people who aren't committed. This will be very physically taxing on you.

Task 2: Writing for practical purposes – Charisma

So, you are looking into becoming a tattoo artist, but not sure whether you will enjoy it or it will be a good career. Well, I am here to explain some reasons why a tattoo artist is an amazing career choice. Working as a tattoo artist you get to have plenty of freedom and control over your work. If you enjoy drawing or art in general, then you will find tattooing is an amazing creativity outlet along with it just being an overall positive experience for both you and your clients.

Freedom/control:

As a tattoo artist you'll often have clients coming in with little to no idea on what they actually would like done, therefore you get to sit down and discuss with your client designs and plan ideas giving you loads of freedom on the unique design that you end up tattooing on them. When it comes to control over tattoos, as much as you may not have total control as it is going on another person's body for the rest of their life. Therefore, if you may not like the design you cannot really tell them what to do. However, if a person comes in with a racist, controversial or terrible design you have full ability to say no. If it is a design, which can negatively affect your reputation as a tattoo artist, then you do not have to tattoo it.

Creativity outlet:

A lot of your time spent as a tattoo artist will be designing, tracing and tattooing all different types of ideas. You will get to tattoo a large array of different styles ranging from realism, cartoons and lettering not only allowing you to practise and perfect your own skills and styles, but experiment with hundreds more. You will get clients who will give you almost complete free rein on what they are tattooed, therefore allowing you to design whatever you are comfortable and enjoy drawing. Overall being a tattoo artist is a very art-based career with so many different ways to express yourself creatively.

Positive experience:

There is not a better feeling than having a client come in with a design or sentimental piece they want to be done and you being the one to make it happen for them. Seeing a person's reactions to an important tattoo to them is such a heart-warming moment for both you and the client. Not only that but also being able to see a client enjoy some of your own work and designs is an amazing feeling, knowing that they respect, appreciate and enjoy your talents and hard work.

Conclusion:

Therefore, in conclusion, if you were thinking about pursuing tattooing as a career then I would 100% encourage it. It's overall such a positive environment and although, like with all jobs, you will be challenged and times may be difficult it is for sure worth it.

Why Veterinary Nursing is a good job - Chloe

If you have a huge passion for animals and caring for them or you admire the Veterinary Industry then working with animals is the right job for you! Not only is it fun working and being around animals, but extremely rewarding as well. It is very easy to get into working with animals especially if you're still in school.

For example: If you are wanting to go down that path then I recommend doing a 2-year certificate course in Animal Studies. This will teach you the basics of caring and looking after animals and general first aid to sick and injured animals as well. There are also online courses that you can take that are either a part of school or outside of school.

If you are looking for your first-time job or a change of work environment as a teen, the most suitable places that you can work with animals are; your local veterinary clinic, pet store, aquarium, reptile shop, cat or dog adoption centres, dog training facilities or dog washing services such as Jim's Dog wash. Some other jobs you could consider are; dog walking, dog sitting, at-home dog grooming, certified cat or dog breeder or working in an animal donations shop.

Another reason why Veterinary nursing is a good job is that it's almost always a good, positive, fun environment and workplace. Along with fun and uplifting team members that carry the same interests as you, every day is unique. Some days will be bad and some will be extremely rewarding.

Veterinary nursing is truly unique because apart from it being a very rewarding and fun job, you get to help and care for sick and injured animals which is very rewarding but you still have to be prepared for the bad days when you won't be able to save every animal. This job is a good balance in my opinion as it allows you to be prepared for any situation that may come your way working in the Veterinary industry.

And this is why I think working as a Vet would be the perfect job for you if your passion is animals.